

The Iglood Life

by Arden Davidson

There are some very good things about living in an igloo... and some very bad things too!

The good thing 'bout living in an igloo
is your house can never burn down.
And you never have to wash the windows
or vacuum the dirt off the ground.

The bad thing 'bout living in an igloo,
besides being very cold,
is there's no place to plug in a TV
and watching ice melt gets real old.

1. It is good to be able to look at both the good things and the bad things in any situation. Can you think of any more good things about living in an igloo?
2. Can you apply this concept to life just now when we have all been asked to stay at home? What are the good things and the bad things about life during lockdown?